Purpose and usage

This controlled document defines operational standards for hotel teams. It is intended to support consistent decisions, clear accountability, accurate record keeping, and high-quality service recovery across Aurelia properties. Teams must apply local legal requirements when those requirements are stricter than this standard.

Loyalty Case Examples

1. Loyalty Tier Definitions and Guest Identification

Aurelia loyalty status helps teams prioritize recognition, communication, and relationship-sensitive recovery. Status does not replace evidence review and must not be used to approve unsupported claims. The guest profile should be checked early in any significant complaint review.

Tier	Typical profile	Recognition standard	Recovery handling
Member	Enrolled guest with limited stay history.	Welcome acknowledgement and standard benefits.	Use normal remedy matrix.
Silver	Several recent stays or moderate annual spend.	Preferred room notes when available.	Supervisor review for Level 3 issues.
Gold	Frequent guest or corporate traveler.	Priority service queue and proactive follow-up.	Duty manager awareness for verified material disruption.
Platinum	High-value or highly frequent guest.	Manager welcome note where practical; priority issue handling.	Duty manager review; consider tailored remedy for verified issues.
Ambassador	Invite-only guest or strategic account contact.	Property leadership awareness.	General manager review for material complaints.

Profile matching

- Use booking ID, email, phone, loyalty number, and stay dates to match the guest.
- Do not disclose loyalty data to unauthorized third parties.
- If two profiles appear to match, ask a supervisor to merge or confirm before applying tier benefits.
- For agency or group bookings, check both individual profile and account notes.

2. VIP Handling Standards

VIP handling is intended to protect guest trust and account relationships. It does not require excessive compensation; it requires speed, clarity, and ownership. High-value guests should never be passed between departments without a named owner.

Situation	Required handling	Target time
-----------	-------------------	-------------

VIP complaint during stay	Duty manager contacts guest, confirms issue, and offers immediate operational correction.	15 minutes acknowledgement.
VIP complaint after departure	Guest experience supervisor reviews evidence and prepares manager response.	Same business day.
Ambassador complaint	General manager or delegate reviews before final response.	Same day or next morning if after hours.
Corporate account complaint	Notify account owner when financial remedy may affect contract relationship.	Within one business day.

Service tone

Communication with VIP guests must be personal, specific, and concise. Avoid generic phrases such as “we regret any inconvenience” without naming the issue. Reference corrective action only when it is actually assigned.

3. Benefits, Exceptions, and Compensation Uplifts

Benefit area	Standard benefit	Exception rule
Room preference	Preferred bed, floor, or view when available.	Do not guarantee unavailable room types without inventory confirmation.
Late checkout	Priority consideration based on occupancy.	Do not promise when same-day arrival pressure is high.
Welcome amenity	Tier-specific amenity or note.	May be substituted for dietary, religious, or local restrictions.
Recovery uplift	Additional points, upgrade note, or manager call for verified material disruption.	Must stay within approval authority and be documented.

When a verified Level 3 issue affects a Platinum guest, a one-night refund may be paired with a future upgrade note if the cost is controlled and the guest relationship justifies it. For Ambassador guests, the general manager may approve a tailored recovery package after reviewing stay value and evidence.

Repeated guest history

Positive stay history is relevant when deciding between a minimal and moderate remedy. A guest with many completed stays and no previous complaints should receive the benefit of a prompt, respectful review. A guest with repeated claims should still be heard, but high-value remedies require manager review and previous-case comparison.

4. Privacy, Notes, and Account Owner Coordination

Loyalty profiles may contain personal preferences and commercial account notes. Team members must use only information needed to serve the case and must avoid including unnecessary personal details in broad internal messages.

- Do not place sensitive preference notes in maintenance or housekeeping tickets unless necessary for the task.

- Do not share compensation history with the guest.
- Corporate account owner notes should be reviewed before major remedy decisions involving contracted clients.
- Keep communication factual, respectful, and free from personal judgments.

Profile updates

After closure, update the guest profile with a brief neutral case note. The note should state the issue category, verified findings, remedy, and any follow-up promised. Avoid emotional labels about the guest.

5. Tier-Specific Response Examples

Scenario	Tier	Appropriate handling
AC failed overnight; maintenance log confirms prior open ticket.	Platinum	Duty manager call, one affected night refund within authority, future upgrade note, maintenance escalation.
Missing welcome amenity discovered after check-in.	Gold	Apology, amenity replacement, modest points posting.
Room preference unavailable due to sold-out night.	Silver	Apology, explanation, priority note for next stay; no refund unless guaranteed feature was sold.
Dirty bathroom photo after check-in; housekeeping record inconsistent.	Ambassador	General manager review, room move if in-house, tailored remedy, quality review.
Repeated request for cash refund with no supporting details.	Member	Ask clarifying questions, review records, manager review if prior claims exist.

These examples are guides. The final decision must reflect evidence, guest impact, approval authority, and local property context.

6. Relationship Review and Commercial Sensitivity

Some guests are connected to negotiated accounts, event planners, owners, travel partners, or long-stay corporate programs. These relationships require careful coordination because a poorly handled complaint may affect more than a single stay.

Relationship type	Who to notify	Special consideration
Corporate traveler	Account owner when remedy may affect contract relationship.	Avoid public or informal commitments that conflict with negotiated terms.
Event planner or group leader	Conference services or sales contact.	Check whether the issue affects multiple rooms or attendees.
Owner or executive referral	Property general manager.	Provide concise summary and verified facts.
Long-stay guest	Rooms division manager.	Review recurring service pattern, not only single incident.
Travel advisor booking	Reservations or partner relations.	Confirm whether remedy is guest-facing, advisor-facing, or both.

Commercial sensitivity does not change evidence standards. It changes the level of coordination and the care used in written communications.

7. Loyalty Case Examples

Example	Recommended handling
Platinum guest with verified overnight AC failure and no prior complaints.	Duty manager calls guest, approves one affected night refund within authority, adds future upgrade note, and ensures room is blocked.
Gold guest with delayed amenity and no stay disruption.	Apology, replacement amenity, modest points; no manager approval unless repeated.
Ambassador guest with cleanliness issue and photo evidence.	General manager review, room move if in-house, tailored recovery package, housekeeping quality follow-up.
Member with unsupported post-stay refund request and no booking match.	Respectful response requesting details; no financial remedy until stay is matched.
Corporate account guest with repeated service delays across several stays.	Account owner notified; operations review for pattern; remedy linked to contract relationship.

Loyalty examples are included to guide consistency. They should be read with the compensation policy and local approval matrix.
